FOUR INJURED WHEN AUTO TURNS OVER

Driver Loses Control and Car
Turns Turtle in Deep Ditch Sunday.

FOUR PASSENGERS ARE HURT

One of the most serious accidents of the season occurred Sunday evening when a car that was driven by Jesse Rains, of Beaver Dam, turned turtle over a twenty-foot embankment into a ditch, pinning its occupants underneath and hurting two of them seriously if not fatally. The car was being driven down a hill when Mr. Rains suddenly lost control of the machine. He saw that something was wrong with the steering gear but before he could stop it the car had gained such momentum that it could not be brought to a standstill. Reaching the bank of the ditch, which was some twenty feet deep, one wheel slipped off and the whole car veered over and fell upside-down into the ditch. All of the passengers were caught beneath it, two of them being in the back seat and were seriously injured. Mrs. Jim Goff and Miss Mattie Tichenor were the ones who received the most painful injuries. The top of the car was broken and the backs of the seats rested on the ground. In this narrow space the passengers were caught and pinioned and it required the chopping of the top of the car in two to get them out. They were immediately taken to a house near by, a physician summoned and their wounds dressed. Mr. and Mrs. Rains were not seriously injured and were able to be taken home. But Mrs. Goff and Miss Tichenor were badly hurt and at last report, it was feared, fatally. Mrs. Goff was badly cut on the head and face and bruised beyond recognition. It is feared she was hurt internally. Miss Tichenor was cut on the head and one of her ears punctured. Also a large gash was cut in her arm.

The accident occurred near Central Grove church Sunday afternoon and to our last report, Mrs. Goff nor Miss Tichenor were able to be moved from where they were. The car was almost entirely ruined.

LARGEST FLOOR TO BE BUILT

Owensboro to Have Mammoth
Loose Leaf House in West
Ninth

Announcement was made on Friday that a stock company is being formed for the erection of the largest loose leaf tobacco warehouse in Owensboro. Among those interested are Commissioner W. G. Riney and Ollie Boulware, two of the best known citizens of the Green river section.

Property owned by Lonnie Likens, in West Ninth street, near the Catholic cemetery, with a frontage of 160 feet, has been purchased, and the contract will be let in a few weeks for the erection of the loose leaf floor. The new house will be open for business next season.

The men interested in the enterprise believe there is room for one more loose leaf house in Owensboro, and that it will assist in keeping Owensboro the largest loose leaf tobacco market in the world. It is understood that a number of other well known farmers of Duval county will be interested in the new concern.—Owensboro Messenger.

"THE SUNSHINE BAND"

Coming over from Owensboro Sunday evening, we were charmed at every station by the music of a band, which we could not locate at the stations nor on the train. On alighting at Horse Branch we found it was composed of sixteen gentlemen of color, hailing from Beaver Dam, and was called the "Sunshine Band." We suppose from the sunshine of their smiles as they smile wide their ivory casings in a carol of dark songs or the sounding of the bugle horn. The band is nine weeks old and makes very creditable music. But equal to their music of the instruments of melody, was their singing. On reaching Beaver Dam the band agreed to render a selection for our special benefit and it is for their special benefit that we are writing this article. Long live the "Sunshine Band" of darktown, Beaver Dam! May these Ethiopian strains grow ever more entrancing as practice makes perfect.

McKINNEY-SCHROETER

The marriage of Mrs. Mary McKinney, of Walla Walla, and Henry O. Schroeter, of this city took place last evening in the presence of friends. The bride is a grand niece of Gen. Robert E. Lee. The groom has resided in Yakima for many years and was in business on the west side, but has more recently been engaged in ranching in Selah. A wedding supper followed the ceremony. The guests included Miss Gertrude Schroeter, daughter of the groom; Mr. and Mrs. D. B. English and daughter, Alice; Mr. and Mrs. H. J. English and daughter, Louise; Mr. and Mrs. J. N. Dean and son, Wilber, of Selah; Mrs. May Flako, Mrs. Carrie Zacher son and C. M. Harrington. After a trip to the coast Mr. and Mrs. Schroeter will make their home at 302-1-2 South Second street.—Yakama (Wash.) Herald.

Miss Helen Miller Hensen Bride of Leo Robertson

The marriage of Miss Helen Miller Hensen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jefferson Johnson, of 377 West Holt avenue, and Leo Taylor Robertson occurred Saturday noon March 29th, in Santa Ana at the home of the officiating minister, Rev. Mr. Benton, of the Episcopal Church.

The bride was attired for the ceremony in a traveling suit of dark blue cloth, with black straw toque, and immediately following the couple left for a short honeymoon trip to the beaches. Upon their return Mr. and Mrs. Robertson will make their home at the Johnson residence, on West Holt avenue, during the absence of Mrs. Robertson's parents, who are leaving this week for Mount Vernon, Ind., where they will spend the summer.

Mrs. Robertson who is a sister of Mrs. Garydon Brooks, of this city, has made many friends since her arrival in Pomona a year and a half ago. Mr. Robertson, who is the son of Joseph W. Robertson, of Hartford, Ky., recently received his discharge from the Motor Transportation Corps at Fort MacArthur where he has been stationed for the past two years.—Pomona (Cal.) Exchange.

The Revenue act of 1918 section 1001 provides that on and after January 1, 1919 any person who operates or rents automobiles for hire shall pay Government license as follows: Cars seating capacity over two and not more than seven $10.00 a year, seven or more $20.00 a year. This license applies to each and every car operated. Any one accepting fee even for one ride is subject to this tax. Persons violating this act are liable to seven penalty. You can secure these license by applying to John T. May Deputy Revenue Collector, Central City, Ky.; or Josh T. Griffith Collector, Owensboro, Ky.

The teacher's examination for certificates to teach in the schools of Ohio county will be held at Fordsville and Hartford, May, 16th and 17th, for white teachers and on the 23rd and 24th for colored teachers. The examination in agriculture will probably be given on Saturday of each examination. Quite a number of aspirants and former teachers will take this examination.

OHIO COUNTY A LEADER

The name of Ohio County is mentioned among the twenty-eight counties in the state to take out their quotas of Victory Bonds during the first week of the campaign. The fact was, the banks took over the entire quota, thus relieving the people of immediate subscription and expediting the completion of the loan. This would have been a wise procedure in other counties as well.

BOYS JUMP FROM TRAIN AND ARE BADLY HURT

Thinking they were on level ground and would not be injured, two boys from Rosine, Arthur McDaniel and Cecil Autry, leaped over a trestle and fell thirty-five feet, at Rockport, Sunday night. They were riding a freight train from above Rosine and intended to alight at the Rosine hill when the train slowed down on the grade. But for some reason they failed to alight at the right place and were carried on to Rockport, when the train slowed down on a trestle. The night being very dark and the boys thinking they were at the right jumping-off place, leapt from the train and fell over the thirty-five feet trestle. They were both badly injured. They were taken to Louisville the next morning on the early train and placed in a hospital and it is thought their injuries will not prove fatal.

HEAVY DAMAGES AWARDED IN EASTHAM-BARNES SUIT

Plaintiff Recovers Judgment for $4,000 for Death of May Eastham.

WAS SENSATIONAL CASE

After hearing all the evidence in the case the jury last week awarded the administrator of the estate of May Eastham, deceased, damages to the amount of $4,000. This verdict was the result of the sensational lawsuit growing out of the death of Miss Eastham, who was killed in an automobile accident last summer between Hartford and Beaver Dam. It was claimed by the father of the young woman that the accident was the result of negligence on the part of an employee of Barnes Brothers, the defendants, who so crashed into the car in which Miss Eastham was riding, throwing her forward through the windshield and severing a jugular vein.

The accident occurred in August near the Berry Hill farm. Miss Eastham was visiting in the county at the time. She was riding in a car driven by Dorris Martin, who was employed by J. F. Casebier, of Beaver Dam, and was coming toward Hartford; the Barnes car was driven by Carlisle Oldham, who was employed by Barnes Brothers and was going toward Beaver Dam. A great cloud of dust was stirred up and in the dust the two cars met, causing the collision. This seemed to be the consensus of the evidence. It was claimed that the Barnes car was on the wrong side of the road and therefore the damages were awarded to the plaintiff.

From the evidence presented it seemed that the disregard of sound ing a horn or siren was partially responsible for the accident. The law requires that anyone must sound the warning if he has not a clear view of at least three hundred feet ahead of him or approach ing the top of a hill or bend of a road.

THE VENEER OF THE YEARS

BY WALTER GREEP.

CHAPTER IX

THE ASCENT BEGUN

Merlin explained that he had heard that there was a vacancy on the staff of the SUN and that he would like to have the position.

"Yes, there is a position," said the editor, "but who told you about it?"

"A gentleman on the train," answered Merlin.

"What was his name?"

"He did not tell me his name, but I can give a description of him." He described the stranger who had told him the story.

"Uhuh, that was Hurton, a stock holder in the SUN. His recommendation counts a good deal, young man. Can you report news?"

"I can," confidently asserted Merlin, though he had never written up an affair in his life.

"Do you drink very much?"

"I do not drink intoxicating drinks at all."

"I am very glad to hear it," said the editor, "the last man we had here went off on a spree and got a bullet in him. Young man, I will take you. You may consider your self a member of my staff."

Never had such words sounded in the ears of Merlin: they were like sweetest music. At last he had achieved an object and, as he thought, was started on the road that leads to wealth and glory.

CHAPTER X

TEMPTATIONS

It took Merlin several weeks after he became reporter on the SUN to become accustomed to the duties that were heaped upon him. First, after an interview with the editor, he found that his "boss" was not an educated man, and it was extremely galling to be ordered about and advised by one he knew to be his inferior in learning. Merlin was sensitive to the superlative degree. He strongly resented any correction that was made in his "copy" and was not slow about saying it. This insolence on the part of his employer was not at all wholesome to the gruff proprietor, resulting in many bickering and disputes in which the impudent reporter invariably lost his side of the argument and usually had to rewrite the whole story. Merlin contends that these arguments did not always conform to the rules laid down in logic. As for instance a story was one day brought in about a man who had just died in abject poverty. It was reported that the deceased was the owner of one of the richest claims in the section and during the boom of the last season, had been offered one hundred thousand dollars for it, but refused and held for a higher price. As a consequence, the boom passed, the claim was never bid for and the poor fellow died in destitute circumstances. Now Merlin, who was detailed to write this up, could think of nothing more appropriate than to begin his article with a poetical quotation. So he commenced it this way: "Shakespeare says, 'There is a tide in the affairs of men,—which taken at its flood leads on to fortune.' Never was this more fully verified than in the strange romantic life of Pete Hawkins, who died here last week," etc. And while he was rattling his typewriter keys in preparation of this article, the boss decided to inspect it.

"Here, you will have to change that," he said, looking over Merlin's shoulder at the new words that were fast taking their places on the page.

"How's that?" he asked in surprise.

"Why, that Shakespeare was there at the beginning. What do you think the readers of a daily newspaper, in a mining town in Colorado, here in the twentieth century, care what an old English codger, who has been dead four hundred years, said about fortune? This is so school journal we're running, nor is it a magazine for the discussion of classics. They're after NEWS—these miners are. Not that they care particularly about Pete being dead, but some of them might want to know about that claim, so should the boom come again, they could fasten on it. I suspect you'd better cut that part out—what do our readers care about Shakespeare?"

"Unfortunately, I suspect they care as little as they know, which is nothing," Merlin said sarcastically, "but then it would not hurt them to learn."

"It might not hurt them to learn but it would probably hurt our circulation in teaching them. You will please write the story over."

"But, Mr. Johnson," Merlin argued, "it is so appropriate, so—"

"Never mind, cut it out."

"But is it—"

"Never mind," said the editor, waving his hand for silence.

Merlin considered this a very quick though extremely improper way of closing. However, there was nothing for him to do but comply with editorial wishes. So he wrote the story over, omitting the quotation.

But such incidents as these were not nearly so trying as were the numberless temptations that were daily presented to him. Many another young man of his type—ambitious, sensitive and unsophisticated—would have fallen. But not so he. That spirit of determination that, when he had failed in Chicago, had led him away to the west, almost penniless and had at last pointed the way upward—that spirit would not let him yield now to the trivial desires or the vain lure of sin. Rather it forced him onward over the stony path toward a golden future; lifting him buoyantly above the petty waves and tides that ebbed and flowed about him, urging him swiftly forward, like an argosy under full sail, toward the light that gleamed on the further shore.

power to aid the Victory Liberty Loan Campaign, that the sacrifices made by American chivalry shall not have been in vain."

The foregoing was adopted by the directors of the War Loan Organization in St. Louis as the official pledge to be taken Sunday at the inspirational mass meeting at Forest Park opening the Fifth and last loan drive. N. S. Gardner, director of publicity in the Eighth Federal Reserve District, requested that all citizens clip out the pledge and memorize it.

FIRST MEETING OF LEAGUE OF NATIONS UNDER PRESIDENCY OF WOODROW WILSON

Paris.—It has been virtually decided that the first meeting of the League of Nations shall be held in Washington next October.

Plans are being formulated for the holding of this meeting, the initial gathering to be in the East Room of the White House under the presidency of President Wilson. At yesterday's plenary session of the peace conference President Wilson moved for the appointment of a committee of nine members to arrange for the inauguration of the league, and this committee will begin its work tomorrow. Its task will include the formulation of permanent plans for the work of the league at Geneva and for an inaugural meeting in Washington.

Meanwhile Lord Robert Cecil and Col. E. M. House and other representative men of various nations have discussed the holding of the meeting in Washington and found general approval of the plan among the delegates, so that it has virtually been settled upon.

Rome.—Thomas Nelson Page, the American ambassador, visited Premier Orlando today. The two men had a friendly conversation in which the ambassador expressed regret at the situation that had arisen.

The ambassador said he thought the situation had been aggravated by Italian newspaper criticism based on a wrong interpretation of President Wilson's attitude, and added that all those interested in preserving good relations between the two countries should do their best to prevent such disturbing factors from having play.

Premier Orlando in reply said he considered the situation very serious, but that his desire was to ameliorate it and restore calm. The premier said he deeply regretted that the incident had occurred and had been much disturbed over it.

LOYALTY

(By Judge E. H. Gary)

Do you know what loyalty is? Have you ever analyzed it? I'm a great stickler for loyalty and I have my own notions about it. Loyalty means a great deal more than simply "not betray." More than acquiescence. Such things are negative, loyalty is a positive virtue. It is more than personal also. Loyalty accepts the big idea. Whatever it is, and accepts it wholeheartedly once the thing is decided on. Loyalty means full accord with the plan—absolute harmony with the purposes and projects of it.

It seems to us that if you substitute a particular kind of loyalty—loyalty to one's country—patriotism—for the general loyalty of which Judge Gary is speaking, you will get a pretty good idea of why it is as much the duty of everyone of us to buy and sell and generally put through this Fifth Loan, as it was at any time when the actual war was on.

FORMER JAILER GIVEN FREEDOM

Prominent Warren County Farmer Released from Troubles by Trutona

Bowling Green, Ky., May 6.—Everybody in Bowling Green and Warren County knows, likes and esteems jolly, whole-souled, honest Nat H. Curd, former jailer and now a prominent farmer and auctioneer. The glowing tribute he offers for Trutona is therefore expected to convince many of the perfect tonic's remarkable merits.

"I suffered from a general breakdown following an attack of the flu," Mr. Curd said. "I became cross and mean and so nervous I couldn't sleep. I thought I had lost my strength forever. My appetite was poor and I lost weight and strength."

"It was a lucky move when I decided to try Trutona, however, for I began improving in a very short time. I've gained 15 pounds in two weeks and feel better in every way than I have for years. I am a well man. I have a ravenous appetite now, the constipation has been relieved. I sleep soundly at night and feel refreshed and buoyant of mornings. Trutona is the only medicine that relieved me and I think it should be in every home."

The sincere statement of Mr. Curd should appeal directly to every thinking man and woman and should convince them that Trutona is a tonic of superior merit.

Trutona, the perfect tonic, is now being introduced and explained in Hartford, Ky., at Ohio County Drug Co., Incorporated. Advertisement.

AN OVERSEAS LETTER

Zettingen, Germany.

April 4, 1919

Mr. W. H. Balze,

Hartford, Ky.

Dear Brother and Family:

Your letter of 5 March received, and was very glad to hear from you and that you were all well. I am well and still waiting for orders to leave. I don't know when we will leave for America, hope to leave soon. I hardly think we will leave before the middle of May for the states, but will likely leave here in the week of May, as it will take about days to reach the port of embarkation. The boys are getting real homesick. It is quite a task for them to stay over here and I am sure they will never want to visit Europe when they once get back to America.

I was in Paris, recently. Paris is the finest city I ever saw and no doubt but that it is the finest city in the world. I was in Paris 3 days and had a very good time there. There are soldiers there from all the Allied Nations, visiting. The Dutch would have had a gay time in Paris had they succeeded in taking it.

I would rather be here than in France as very thing seems so desolate there. The people here have more energy than the French, of course there are good reasons. As this country was not invaded by their enemies, until after the armistice, and I am sure they are not sorry that we are here as we spend quite a lot of money with the people. The U. S. is certainly leaving great amount of money in Europe. I am sure it will be needed at home some of these days.

I was very glad indeed to learn that your business was good, you have my best wishes for a successful business. I note with interest that you are the editor of the Commercial News. It is the newest little news I ever read. I also note with pleasure that you are making a fight for good roads. I am sure you could not render a better service for our County, although you may meet with much opposition on this subject. I have learned by experience and observation that good roads mean every thing.

I am sure the people in America are not aware of the fact that good roads over here have already saved our Government millions of dollars and thousands of American Soldiers lives. There is nothing that could be of more service to our armies over here than good roads. Without them we could not have made and carried out with success, the big drives. Without them we could not have gotten supplies and men fast enough to carry out these famous drives that made the whole world sit up and wonder how such a marvelous undertaking could be accomplished. The good people at home gave millions to the Red Cross and Y. M. C. A. Had it not been for good roads we could not have gotten the services we received with appreciation and thanks, from these noble organizations. The people at home must or should never regret what they have done for the Sons of America that did such noble work. The Dutch made every effort to destroy the roads and hinder the progress of American troops. Thousands of tons of explosives were dropped on these roads but thanks to the American Working party that was always ready to repair these places. I cannot give the good roads proposition enough praises, and I cannot understand why our country with all its wealth cannot have roads as good, if not better, than these European countries. I am sure that all returning soldiers will favor good roads and will be instrumental in causing the best roads in the world to be built in the grand old U. S.

The chief trouble with our roads are that they were not surveyed properly. To build a good road it should be surveyed in order that the hills would be avoided. This country is much rougher than in Ohio county but is very seldom that you are forced to ascend a steep grade in going over the hills. I think there would be much labor and expense saved if the roads were re-surveyed.

I am glad to hear that Erva has gotten back in the states. I had a letter from Arlin the other day he is not far from me but is in Luxemburg, and that is a Neutral country, for this reason I hear that soldiers will not be allowed to visit in that country. But there is no reason why he cannot come to see me, and I expect he will do so as soon as he can get pass. I wrote him some time ago, sending the letter in care of the 39th Division thinking it would probably reach him, which it did and he answered it promptly.

Tell the family hello for me, and that I am very anxious to get back. I will have plenty to tell you when I get back, and expect you will have plenty of questions to ask me, which I will be glad to answer if I can do so. Will close with love and best wishes to all.

Your brother,
ROMA BALZE

PRaise BY PERSHING FOR SALVATION ARMY

General Cables of Splendid Service and Self-Sacrifice in Work With the A. E. F.

Gen. Pershing, in a cable message to Commander Evangeline Booth of the Salvation Army, praises glowingly the valor and the unswerving devotion of the Salvationists in their work among the American soldiers in France.

He not only expresses the high esteem in which the Salvation Army workers at the front are held by the American forces overseas, but dwells on the self sacrifices made by these workers. His message runs:

"I wish to express to you my sincere appreciation and that of all members of the American Expeditionary Forces for the splendid services rendered by the Salvation Army to the American Army in France.

You first submitted your plans to me in the summer of 1917, and before the end of that year you had a number of huts in operation in the training area of the First Division and a group of devoted men and women who laid the foundation for the affectionate regard in which the workers of your organization have always been held by the American soldiers.

"The outstanding features of the work of the Salvation Army have been its disposition to push its activities as far as possible to the front and the trained and experienced character of its workers, whose one thought was the well being of the soldiers they came to serve. While the maintenance of these standards has necessarily kept your work within narrow bounds, as compared to some of the other welfare agencies, it has resulted in a degree of excellence and self sacrifice in the work performed which has been second to none.

"It has endeared your organization and its individual men and women workers to all those divisions and other units to which they have been attached, and has spread their good name to every part of the American Expeditionary Forces. Please accept message to each of your workers.

"JOHN J. PERSHING." Commander Booth cabled her thanks for the kindly sentiments expressed by Gen. Pershing, and his message was conveyed broadcast to all those serving in the ranks of the Salvation Army, here and abroad.

CHILD LABOR LAW IN EFFECT

Very Severe Penalties are Provided For Any Violations of Provisions

Washington, April.—Employment of one child for one day in conflict with child labor tax provisions of the new revenue bill will subject the employer's business to a tax of ten per cent of the net profits for the taxable year. This is the interpretation of the Bureau of Internal Revenue, the administrator of the new law, as announced today by Commissioner Roper. The child labor provisions of the new bill becomes effective April 25, 1919.

On and after that date profits of any mine or quarry in which children under sixteen years of age, or any mill, cannery, workshop, factory or manufacturing establishment in which children under fourteen years of age are employed or permitted to work "during any portion of the taxable year" are subject to the ten per cent tax. A single specific exception is made of boys' and girls' running clubs, such as are recognized by the department of agriculture.

Plans for the enforcement of the law have been practically completed. There is being formed in the Bureau of Internal Revenue a division to be known as the child labor tax division.

"While it is the purpose of the Bureau of Internal Revenue strictly to enforce the law," said Commissioner Roper, "the aim is to administer its provisions in a way to cause as little inconvenience as possible to the business world and to offer no injustice to employees. It is the intention to accept in confirmation of the age of the child, with certain restrictions as to revocation and suspension, the age certificate, working or employment certificate or permit, or other similar permit issued under the laws of the state.

"In some states where adequate laws do not exist this will not be feasible. These states probably are North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Mississippi and Texas. The plan is that federal agents are to visit localities in such states where establishments employ child labor and issue the certificates in person."

The act imposes a penalty of a fine of not more than $1,000 or imprisonment for not more than three months, or both fine and imprisonment, for knowingly presenting false evidence in relation to a birth certificate or application therefor. The law provides that in none of the industries within the scope of the law shall children within the age limits be permitted to work more than eight hours a day, or more than six days a week, or before the hour of 6 a. m. or after 7 p. m. without assessment of the tax. Such industries will be required to keep a time record showing the hours of employment of each child between fourteen and sixteen years of age for information of federal inspectors.

AMERICAN TROOPS IN RUSSIA ARE IN BEST OF HEALTH, SAYS REPORT

Washington.—Brigadier General Richardson, commander of the American forces in Northern Russia, in his official report to the war department today, said all detachments in the Archangel region were in the best of health and the spirit of the men was good. He said there was no apprehension at headquarters respecting the morale of the American forces. "The high command is alert to the situation on the Dvina river, but is without anxiety," he said.

DON'T THROW AWAY Your Old Tires

Conserve and Help Lick the Kaiser

THIS is to show you why "DRI-KURE RETREDING" with a 3,500-mile guarantee will save you one-half to two-thirds on your tire bill.

"Dri-Kure Retreding" is a proven factory method—not the old "kettle" process that soaks the carcass of your tire with steam, that, when cold, turns to water and rots the fabric.

"Dri-Kure" method is operated by DRY HEAT under 3,000 pounds pressure. The mere fact that racing drivers use tires cured by the Dri-Kure Process is proof that we build our treads for service.

Tom Alley, Chicago racing driver, averaged 104 miles per hour for 100 miles at Chicago Speedway, June 22, 1918, without a tire change and all on Retreded Tires. There's a reason.

Now Compare the Cost and Saving

Compare the cost of the tire you have on your car now and the cost of Dri-Kure Retreding, the same size. The chart of prices will show you the cost of retreading.

Now Figure the Saving for Yourself and remember that every tire we retread is guaranteed for 3,500 miles. Is this saving worth while? Think it over. Who wouldn't want to save from one-half to one-third of their tire bills?

We will gladly show you the complete detail and extend to you a personal invitation to come in for a chat. We will prove to you the success of this process to your own satisfaction.

It looks like Hind-end-burg is living up to his name by being the Hind-end of everything in Germany just at present.

The bewhiskered Bolshevik has temporarily crowded the sombre-faced Mex off the cartoon page as representing the epitome of disorder.

The future will find Germany before the door of the League of Nations, vainly seeking entrance but finding it is forever locked unto her.

The American press has got in the habit of cussing somebody and with the Kaiser out of business and Italy yielding, they have no one turn on but poor old Burleson.

Maximilian Harden says if the allied peace pact is enforced the Germans would become coolies. Why worry about being coolies? Haven't the whole nation got cold feet?

The good road fever seems to be pervading Ohio county at a rapid gait. Good road meetings are being held in every section of the county and all are boosting for the road between Owensboro and Bowling Green.

There is not nearly so large a crowd attending court as is usual. Only those who are witnesses or vitally concerned are attending. This is the busiest season of the year and farmers make as few trips to town as possible.

A great distillery in Lexington has ceased making whiskey and gone to making candy. Perhaps this one is like the candy factory in Birmingham which we heard of, which had the largest trade of any factory in the state and on examination by the state revenue agent, was found to be shipping the "candy" in liquid form.

Many soldiers are re-enlisting in the regular army after being discharged from the draft army. Military life is the greatest calisthenic agency for developing the physique of a young man and besides there is a peculiar charm in the sound of the reveille, the salutes and the sounding of taps. Given the chance of overseas service linked with this fascination and we can see the reason for their re-enlisting.

We understand that there is an epidemic of flu among the horses. If such be the case and the disease be infectious, great care should be taken with the horses to prevent the spread of it. It is thought this was brought into the county by the western horses that have been imported and if so, there should be an examination of every car load before they are allowed to be auctioned off.

We trust the people of the county will not hesitate to consult the new County Agent, Mr. McCracken, on all farm subjects that may come before them. Mr. McCracken is yet a stranger in the county but is here to help you and the best way for you to get acquainted is to call on him whenever you may need his professional services. He will be only too glad to assist you in solving your farm problems.

Events travel in cycles. First the pendulum swings to one extreme and then reacts to the other. The mean seems to be passed by in the hot chase of radicalism. If it is not despotism in the saddle, then it is unbridled anarchy. For years the iron-clad rule of the Prussian system has harassed the world with its threatenings; and just as it is unseated, comes the equally drenched rule of the rabble, then disregard of order, the loosening of all restraints and giving way to the beastly lower and carnal passions. Doubtless a reign of despotism will follow in the wake of the present deluge of social disorder known as Bolshevism.

General Coxey has sent out circulars to the newspapers of the country, asking their assistance in recruiting up his new army that is to march on Washington and force the initiative and referendum on the people and government whether or no. Just now the farming season is on and we will not publish his request lest some one might get the rambling fever and decide to follow Coxey, thus taking him off the farm for a season.

A great many papers—mostly Democratic are pouring out their vials of wrath on the head of Champ Clark. The chief reason is, Champ is a man of opinions and with enough courage to speak his convictions whether they be those of political machinists or individual opinions. Champ may have been off at times, but we believe he is at least sincere and that is more than can be said of a good many of his critics.

The lawsuit of Eastham vs. Barnes and brothers, which was tried in the Circuit Court last week, brings very pertinently before us the necessity of closer observance of road laws and regulations. It was regrettable that the firm, none of whom had any direct connection with the accident, were forced to pay this huge sum and it would have been regrettable should the plaintiff gone without compensation. And most regrettable of all was the loss of that splendid young life. If fault there was, we can only lay at the feet of those whose duty it is to see that road laws are enforced. If there had been a strict enforcing of these laws before the accident happened, the parties would not have been speeding; would have kept on the right side of the road and the girl would have been living today. If a law is of any benefit, it should be enforced; if not it should be set aside. We trust the road laws will be more rigidly enforced in the future and such accidents averted.

THE EAGLE'S CLAW TIGHTENS

According to Editor Thomas the Eagle has at last fastened his relentless talons on the name and honor of our best of friends, Uncle Alex, laying bare to the world these things, so sacred in their very conception, that it is sacrilege to disclose them. Hey-dey! And what is the difference betwixt Tweedledee and Tweedledum?

Our friend and neighbor, feigning innocence almost angelic, strings the following little bead on the rosary so oddly strung: "Uncle Alex Curtis is teaching a chauffeur school for young ladies. He just hears his class on Sundays." May the gods forsake you, editor Thomas, for this is breach of all confidence and violation of chivalry! In all our most ignominious "peaching" we never deigned to bring a young lady into the limelight, by parading her through the columns of a newspaper. This was the unkindest cut of all and we have a penchant that Uncle Alex will not accept it with as much gracious and forgiving silence as he did our innocent and unoffending mention.

As you have assumed to champion the cause of Uncle Alex and yet transcend us in glaring and brazen publicity, through natural courtesy as well as duty, it devolves upon us to defend the young ladies as well as Uncle Alex. Far be it from us to thus bring to cruel gaze of an unsympathetic world things meet only to be treasured in the innermost recesses of the heart "in spring a young man's fancies, lightly turn, etc." and what wreck it if his locks be white as the snows of Everest if his heart is young? The man who is not thrilled by the radiance of moonlight or yields not to the seducing charms of twilight is fit for treasons, stratagems and spoils.

And the young ladies—who can blame them? Springtime and fancy free, where is one who would not learn to be a chauffeur? And should the fact that they are apprentices be so cruelly paraded before the public?

Ah, editor Thomas, we fear you have done the crowning wrong of all the sinful race in this uncalled-for expose. We do not mind the lashings you bestow upon us, but for the sake of sentiment, if for no other reason, do not tread the sacred flowers of Allah's own garden beneath your feet again!

ABOVE AND BEYOND THE CALL OF DUTY INSPIRING PHRASE

CITATION OF SOLDIERS AN INCENTIVE TO CIVILIANS TO GO THE LIMIT.

WHAT BOYS SACRIFICED

Read These Records of Heroes and Then Consider the Little You Have Done.

Picture this scene for yourself: the hot day in July, the heat waves dancing over the wheat fields, where the delayed harvest had burned the standing wheat dry, brown and dead:

"After his platoon had gained its objective along a railroad embankment, Private Dilboy, accompanying his platoon leader to reconnoiter the ground beyond, was suddenly fired upon by an enemy machine gun from one hundred yards. From a standing position on the railroad track fully exposed to view, he opened fire at once, but failing to silence the gun, rushed forward with his bayonet fixed, through a wheat field to the gun emplacement, falling within 25 yards of the gun with his right leg nearly severed above the knee, and with several bullets in his body, with undaunted courage, he continued to fire into the emplacement from a prone position, killing two of the enemy and dispersing the rest of the crew."

So reads the brief citation of an American private, who died in the wheat field to the east of Belleau Wood, July 18, 1918.

"For conspicuous gallantry and intrepidity above and beyond the call of duty in action with the enemy," runs the citation.

"Above and beyond the call of duty." How many times that sentence has appeared in the records of the American fighting man in France.

Private Dilboy charged through a blinding fire of machine gun bullets, slipped and torn with steel slugs, bayonet fixed. He was shot well up to his when he stopped, but he still had it in him to kill two Germans. And he fell face to the Hun machine gun. Something "Above and beyond the call of duty" carried that American private soldier straight to death.

His Life For a Friend's.

Here is another brief citation of a Californian who died as a man and American should:

"Above and beyond the call of duty," and there were scores of them, like Corporal Roberts drowned in the shell hole of Montebello Woods, October 4, 1918. Willie Sandlin of Hayden, Ky., won his citation on Sept. 26, in Bois de Forges. Says the report:

"Sergeant Sandlin showed conspicuous gallantry in action at Bois de Forges by advancing alone directly on a machine gun nest which was holding up the line with its fire. He killed the crew with a grenade and enabled the line to advance. Later in the day Sergeant Sandlin attacked alone and put out of action two other machine gun nests, setting a splendid example of bravery and coolness to his men."

"Above and beyond the call of duty." That was the manner in which Americans fought and died over in France. What have you done?

Men From Mid-West.

There was a first lieutenant from the little city of Salina, Kan. Lienn. George. Roth was in action near Echault, France, September 29-30, last year. He was severely wounded by machine gun fire, but had to be ordered back from his platoon to the dressing station before he would go. He was back within 45 minutes, on duty all night, establishing outposts, inspecting his lines. At daybreak he was again wounded. Later in the day a burning shell added two more wounds to those he had suffered. This shell killed his commanding officer and the other two lieutenants of his company, so Lieut. Roth stayed on the job. He was the sort of an American who felt something "Above and beyond the call of duty."

Many of them died as Capt. Alexander R. Skinner of St. Louis died, on September 26, 1918. He fell at the little hamlet of Cheppy, France, a place that will be remembered so long as memory lasts by the men of Missouri and Kansas who fought with the 35th Division. Says the report:

"Unwilling to sacrifice his men when his company was held up by terrific machine gun fire from iron pill boxes on the Hindenburg line, Capt. Skinner personally led an automatic rifleman of a carrier in an attack on the machine guns. The carrier was killed instantly, but Capt. Skinner seized the ammunition and continued through an opening in the barbed wire, feeding the gun till he was killed too."

So run the terse, short, plain tales of the men of America who have been cited for the sort of heroism that is deathless. "Above and beyond the call of duty." They were not content to be just soldiers. They had in them something more than doing their duty. It was to be "Above and beyond the call of duty," and every man of them was given that glorious citation which included "For conspicuous gallantry and intrepidity." Will you do your share for the Victory Loan?

And Then He Saw the Point!

COST NOT COUNTED WHEN IT CAME TO SAVING OUR BOYS

THINK OF SITUATION YEAR AGO, AND HOW READY WE WERE TO STAKE ALL.

BIG DEBT WAS INCURRED

War Closed Earlier Than Anyone Expected, and We Must Finish Paying For It.

When your boy was on the fighting front over there last fall, or was in one of the training camps over here being hardened for the most terrible task that ever confronted man; when countless mothers with sad eyes were scanning the death lists with hearts aching, fearing lest the name of a loved one might be there; when the fate of the nation and of the world hung in the balance, then the thought uppermost in every mind was the winning of the war and the avoidance of continued loss of life.

Then during the fall months of 1918 the purse strings of American citizens were cut with willing hands. For the Fourth Liberty Loan—the Fighting Liberty Loan—the almost incalculable sum of six billions of dollars was asked by the United States Government to prosecute the war. What the answer was is history—glorious history.

Americans not only met the call, but threw in another billion for good measure.

It required the most sanguine optimist then to predict a victory over Germany before the summer that is now approaching. Thousands of America's best and bravest young men, the flower of the country, were daily offering up and giving their lives for the weal of humanity. They were suffering ghastly wounds, inflicted by weapons such as only the brutality of Germany's most vicious minds could fashion; they were being blinded and tortured with poisonous gases that Germany introduced against all usages into modern warfare, and they were lying in the mud of slimy trenches, deprived of every comfort, with each recurrent day sapping their vitality, that America might be saved.

Total Wealth Pledged.

Then could anyone in absolute authority have promised a victory before Europe was locked in winter's grasp, the total wealth of this rich land would unhesitatingly have been placed at the nation's disposal, that the lives of countless thousands of the flower of American manhood need not be sacrificed.

Those who were planning and directing the war, or that part of it being enacted by America, were dominated by the idea of ending the war quickly and saving every American life possible. The cost was not counted. The money that flowed from the people's purse was spent unstintingly. Millions were spent to equip the grandest army the sun ever shone on. Other millions were spent for ships to convey them across the Atlantic. Factories were kept at work night and day turning out munitions and supplies.

America surpassed even herself. She arose even above the glorious traditions of the world's greatest country, that has never tasted defeat. She accomplished the impossible. At the very moment when the German war machine seemed invincible, when that which was intended as the final drive that was to wipe France off the map, then Pershing's fads were thrown against that terrible army in gray. The onslaught was all that Germany had planned. But the stolid German mind had not adequately valued the fighting ability of the boys in khaki. The gray clad hosts attacked with all the confidence of their training. But the Americans did not yield. Their depleted ranks were filled as if by magic and that which German militarists contemptuously termed an untrained mob, displayed soldierly qualities and persistent fighting qualities that has elicited the warmest admiration of the whole world.

Finish the Job!

Every day the war was shortened thousands of American lives were saved. For every day it was shortened your boy or your neighbor's boy will be returned to the family fireside just that much sooner, and this fact that he will return sound in body and mind is due to the splendid preparations his government made for his welfare and the prosecution of the war.

Now more money is needed to pay the bills—the debt that was incurred that the life of your boy and your neighbor's boy might not be offered up on the sacrificial altar of war, must be paid. Money is needed to bring him back to the land that gave birth to the Stars and Stripes. Money is needed to complete the reconstruction and to "Finish the Job."

Just how much will be asked, just how much interest will be paid, just what form the securities offered will take, and just when they will mature have not been announced. They are mere details. The nation's honor has been pledged, and the American people will redeem it with the Victory Liberty Loan.

Prove You're a Stayer.

The Fifth Liberty Loan will give the army of patriotic buyers the chance which all good Americans welcome.

It will let the millions of buyers of bonds prove that they are stayers. They will show that they are determined to finish a job to the very end, even so great a job as a world war.

HUN SUBMARINE COMING

U-Boat Will Ascend the Mississippi River and Be Seen in St. Louis.

One of the group of German U-boats now proceeding towards the United States to participate in the Victory Loan campaign which opens April 21st has been diverted from the Bermudas to New Orleans, from whence it will ascend the Mississippi to St. Louis.

The submarine saw actual service during the war and is one of the fleet surrendered.

The boat will remain at St. Louis long enough to afford the public an opportunity to inspect it. It is one of the largest and latest types used by Germany.

All habits are not bad. There is one you should cultivate—saving. Thrift Stamps and War Savings Stamps point the way to success.

New in Beauty, Old in Virtues; This

MAXWELL Has Stirred America

Men buying cars today are giving this present day Maxwell searching consideration. For where, this moment, can you get a car, like a Maxwell, the chassis of which has had a 300,000 manufacturing run and the beauty of which has been improved to an astonishing degree?

They're weighing the soundness of the 300,000-all-alike-for-five-years logic and they translate that into reliability supreme.

They know in their own business what changes in plan, in program, mean—how serious the losses in good will and profits—the dissatisfied customers.

Many of them have been "burned" by "new models" in days gone by, and have joined the "never again" club.

So this present day Maxwell has a deep appeal to them; and thousands since January 1 have reached for their check books as soon as they laid eyes on this new Maxwell.

Perhaps it is unfair to say "new" because the chassis is five years old in design. When we say "new" we mean its vastly improved appearance.

There are twenty-four things done to the Maxwell to make it better looking. Sharp angles have been removed; lines straightened; certain corners eliminated; bonnet vents increased in number; three more coats of paint added; fenders lowered; seats thickened three inches; a circassian dash installed; gas tank put in the rear, etc.

See the latest Maxwell, and you'll want one, too.

"Say," said the man as he entered the clothing store, "I bought this suit here less than two weeks ago, and it is rusty-looking already."

"Well," replied the clothing dealer, "I guaranteed it to wear like iron, didn't I?"

Ole Mammy Lize was dusting the Southern woman's drawing-room. She came to a small bronze bust of Shakespeare, and began carefully going over it with her rag. "Mis' Juliet, chile, who am dis yere gemmun?"

"That is Shakespeare, Lize, a wonderful poet, who died centuries ago." "Dat bim, miss, Ise done hyear o' Mistah Shakespeare a lot o' times. Everybody seems to know him. 'Deed, I done hyear so much 'bout him dat I allus thought he was a white gemmun."

Bobby was sent by his father on an errand to an elderly relative who placed great stress upon manners. Upon his return his father questioned him as to his reception.

"Tain't no use to write any more letters to him pa. He can't see to read them. He is blind!" "Blind!"

"Yes. He asked me twice where my hat was, and I had it on my head all the time."

Mrs. Erwin was showing Selma, the new Swedish maid, "the ropes."

"This," said Mrs. Erwin, "is my son's room. He is in Yale." "Yail," Selma's face lit up with sympathetic understanding. "My brudder ban there too."

"Is that so? What year?" "Ach! he ban got no year! He ban punch a man in the eye, and the yoodge say, 'You Azel, sixty days in yail!'"

A little Boston urchin named Mary, aged five years, is a Christian Scientist to the marrow. Mary fell one day and barked her shin, and, rubbing the hurt with her hand, she began to cry. Her aunt, an unbeliever, happened along at this moment. The aunt was mindful of Mary's faith and of those contradictory tears, and, with a mocking smile, she said:

"Why, Mary, are you hurt?" "No, I ain't hurt," sobbed the little girl, restraining her sobs as best she could.

"But, if you are not hurt, why are you crying?" "I am crying," said Mary, "because I am mad."

"And what are you mad about?" "I am mad—boo-hoo!" wept the little girl, "because I can't feel I ain't hurt."

Last Christmas before their marriage she gave him a book entitled "A Perfect Gentleman." This Christmas she intends giving him "Wild Animals I Have Known."

"Why so?"

"Says she can't bear to see how little she is getting for the money."

"Broadway chorus girls are paid from $25 to $70 a week. I understand."

"So it is said."

"Did you ever hear of a rural school marm getting that much?"

"No. But why the comparison? There's no future in musical comedy for the average rural school farm."

"Advice should always be charged for."

"Eh?"

"Then somebody is benefited whether it is taken or not."

A Northern preacher had moved into a southern town and takes charge of the local church. The preacher was a Republican but as so one asked him about his political convictions and the town, like all southern towns, being purely Democratic, they did not suppose he was anything else but a Democrat. However, they knew every colored voter in town and after the election the preacher found the election clerk, who was one of his deacons, much puzzled.

"Why, what's the matter Brother Jones?" he asked.

"Well, parson," he answered, "I'm jest trying to figure out who the new nigger is in town."

The Chinese proposition to let Japan keep Kiau-Chau and the former German concessions for one year under a pledge to turn them back upon China's reimbursement of Japan for the cost of capturing Tsin-Tao has been unfavorably received by the Japanese. The Japanese are willing to agree to the return of Kiau-Chau but upon the condition that they retain the port of Tsin-Tao and the right to cooperate with the Chinese in the operation of the German owned railways and mines in the Stantung province.

The Chinese maintain the Japanese proposals threaten China's sovereignty if adopted, and would put into effect terms of secret agreements forced upon her by Japan. While the situation is difficult, the premiers are endeavoring to arrange a compromise whereby the German possessions in China will be formally turned over to Japan with provisions insuring their return to China by the League of Nations under just conditions.

LONDON PRESS COMMENT ON LEAGUE
COVENANT NOT HEAVY

London.—Regarding the amended covenant of the League of Nations, the newspapers of London don't welcome it heartily, but there is no condemnation of its principles.

The Daily News criticizes the rejection of Japan's plea for equality. "The sooner the new covenant is put in operation the better," says the Daily News. "Only then will the real greatness of President Wilson's triumph become clear."

The Daily Chronicle questions whether the present form of the league meets the demands the future will likely make upon it, and criticizes what it considers the weakness of the amendments to the covenant.

The Morning Post regards the league as a very large and dubious experiment. "The world gains nothing whatever by the signature of the covenant so far as the present position is concerned," says the Post, "though it possibly may be years hence."

The Daily Mail joins heartily in "felicitations which the peace conference bestowed on Wilson on the triumph of his momentous idea," and sees in the league a guarantee of enduring peace.

New Exchange Telephone Rates Effective May 1, 1919

A new schedule of telephone exchange rates became effective in Hartford, Beaver Dam, Rockport and Centertown, May 1 by direction of the Operating Board of the United States Telegraph and Telephone Administration, acting under the order of the Postmaster General of the United States.

As you know, all of the lines and property of this company are in the possession, control and are being operated by the United States Government under the direction of the Postmaster General of the United States.

The new rates are necessary in order that additional revenue may be secured by the government to meet the increased operating expenses. The causes which make greater telephone revenue necessary are due to the new conditions and the new price levels introduced by the war and are entirely beyond the control of the United States Telegraph and Telephone Administration or of the Telephone Company.

More than two years ago the Company foresaw that the telephone system would be operated at a loss unless the rates could be adjusted to meet the increasing costs of all elements entering into the production of service. A similar rate adjustment would have been unavoidable under private control and the new rate schedule is practically the same we would have sought in 1918 if the government had not taken possession of our property.

As stated by the Postmaster General, the owners of the telephone system do not benefit in any way from rate changes. Practically all of the increased operating expenses which require this additional revenue are due to increased wages paid to employees to enable them to meet the new conditions of life in the present day.

It is neither practicable nor desirable to reduce wages, and so far as wages are concerned we believe that portion of the increased operating expenses to be permanent.

The new rate schedule is fair and reasonable and the percentage of increased revenue which it will produce is much lower than the increased cost of other services and commodities of a similar character.

Complete detailed information about the new rates may be obtained at the manager's office. We are making every effort to change our records promptly, and your courteous consideration will be appreciated.

AVAIL POLICE FORCE UNDER LEAGUE NEEDED

London.—A large naval international police force will be necessary under the League of Nations plan immediately after peace is declared in the opinion of Josephus W. Daniels, American secretary of the navy, and one of the objects of his trip abroad is discuss with the admiralties of Italy, France and England some details as to this force, particularly the types of vessels desirable.

"The desire of conquest may still linger in the hearts of some naval warships," said Secretary Daniels, "and such nations must be shown that it would be unprofitable to attempt to accomplish those desires."

As the League of Nations becomes established, Secretary Daniels added, the naval police force would certainly be decreased in proportion to the strength of the league.

"The secretary has just returned from a visit to the interned German battle fleet at Scapa Flow. He declined to express an opinion as to the disposition of these German warships."

ations after peace," said Secretary Daniels, "and such nations must be shown that it would be unprofitable to attempt to accomplish those desires."

"We are confident," he declared, "that the next Pan-American convention at Atlantic City will see delegates arriving from Europe in luxurious air cruisers and fast-flying transports from South America."

"When the questions before the convention are solved, there will be still others of great magnitude undreamed of to-day, arising out of present achievements."

A cable message received from Secretary of War Newton D. Baker said in part:

"The future of aviation is as limitless as the realm with which it deals."

AIRSHIPS IN TEN YEARS TO BE COMMON AS AUTO

Atlantic City.—The airship will be as common as the automobile in ten years, Alan B. Hawley, president of the Aero Club of America, said in opening the second Pan-American Aeronautic Congress here to-day. Mr. Hawley presided at the opening session, which was attended by 500 delegates.

"We are confident," he declared, "that the next Pan-American convention at Atlantic City will see delegates arriving from Europe in luxurious air cruisers and fast-flying transports from South America."

"When the questions before the convention are solved, there will be still others of great magnitude undreamed of to-day, arising out of present achievements."

A cable message received from Secretary of War Newton D. Baker said in part:

"The future of aviation is as limitless as the realm with which it deals."
